Cumulative vote

When the members of the board of directors are elected using the cumulative voting method, the board members in office up to the date of the OGMS are automatically registered in the list of candidates for election in the new Board of Directors.

The number of cumulative votes that a shareholder is entitled to is obtained by multiplying the voting rights held by the respective shareholder with the number of directors that form Electrica's Board of Directors (seven).

The votes may be distributed to one or more candidates. For this, the voting form is filled-in by mentioning the number of votes granted to each candidate. Shareholders may choose to distribute no votes to a specific candidate.
